

WE FEEL YOUR PAIN

The last few years have been hard on everyone, but especially tough for public school employees.

If it seems like you are under attack from certain politicians who want to divide teachers and parents, it is because you are.

Many of these politicians have ties to the charter and voucher school industry, so they are hoping to profit from turning parents against public schools.

That is why the same people who have conspired to keep salaries low for experienced educators are fanning the flames of the culture wars. The common thread in all of these attacks is that they benefit the people who want to privatize our schools.

"The Legislature very deliberately did what they did. They raised pay in the way that they did. And the governor did that. And they are doing it again!" -Ryan Petty, Florida Board of Education Member
